[XLIX Year.] THURSDAY, March 15, 1764. [No. 994.]

[Cambridge, Nov. 16, 1763. As the General Assembly have this Day chearfully and unanimously voted to rebuild Harvard-Hall, it encourages us to hope, that the LIBRARY and APPARATUS will also be repaired by the private Munificence of Gentlemen who wish well to Learning, have a regard for their Country, and know the Importance of Literature to the Church and State.]

GENOA, November [illegible]

THREE Days ago arrived a Dutch Ship of the Tunisian Algiers. The Captain reports, that the French Embassy was at Library [illegible] Britain. And was formally declared War against the French. He says, that on the [illegible] against Algiers, and a Peace [illegible] that on the 18th they, All in [illegible] dock Ship that [illegible] Be Carthage [illegible] Ship [illegible] Ship [illegible] Ship but also great Cattle Herds. On the Night of the 6th Inſtant, a Party of them aſſembled ſome new-built Walls of Houſes which were ready for Roofing, on a Concern of Lands lately poſſeſſed near the Town of Clapham, and laſt Tueſday Night a conſiderable Number of them aſſembled on the Lands of Ballaverty, near the Houſe of Richard Moore, of Barn, Eſq; and broke down a Paſſage through the ſaid Lands.

" Dec. 7. The Number of Perſons ſuppoſed to have periſhed on board the Hanover Packet from Lisbon, are computed to be upwards of 60. Among whom, it is ſaid, was one Mr. Jacinto, a grand Gentleman, who was coming over in order to enjoy an Eſtate, which was lately left him of a great Book, per Ann.

We have received Letters from Scarborough, Yarm, Whitby, &c. of great Damage being done both on Land and Water, and of many Lives being loſt, in the Storm of Wind which happened on Tueſday Night. The Letter from Whitby concludes thus, " In ſhort, all around here appears full of Deſolation and Ruins; but what ſeems moſt amazing is, that the South Side of the Weſt Iſle of our old Abbey, which had ſuſtained the Fury of all Storms for many Ages, and was ſupported by more than Twenty fine Gothick Pillars, is entirely blown down to the very Foundation, and not ſo much as one Stone remains upon another.

Dec. 9. The better to diſcover French Machinery in North America, we are informed that moſt of our Men of War, on their Paſſage to the Weſt Indies, are ordered to touch at Newfoundland, and cruiſe ſome Time on the Banks, to give the French we are ever at Hand to puniſh the leaſt Infraction of the Treaty. Their Frigates are likewiſe conſtantly to exerciſe in the Gut of Canſo and Bay of Fundy, and to be occaſionally relieved.

Sixty Pieces of Iron Ordnance are now preparing to be ſhipped for Newfoundland, for the Defence of the Fiſhery.

Extract of a Letter from Yarm to Cleveland, Dec. 4.

" On Thurſday the 18 of this laſt a prodigious Quantity of Rain fell here, accompanied with a violent tempeſtuous Wind. The River Tees roſe ſo faſt, that about four a Clock, on Friday Morning, it was in every Houſe of the Town, and, at Half paſt Eight, was four Feet deep in moſt Houſes, in ſome leſs, and in many near Two Yards. The Damage is not very conſiderable, as the moſt part of the Inhabitants had timeously ſecured their Goods. Some indeed, who were not apprehenſive of the Water's riſing, did not perceive their Danger till Break of Day, and others ſlept ſecurely for ſome Time after their Houſes were in the Water. The Current ran ſo forcibly, that ſcarce a Wall is left ſtanding about the Town; but thank God, no Houſes were ſwept down, nor any Lives loſt. Happy it is for the Travellers that the Wind was Eaſterly; had it been in the Weſt, our caſe, we have reaſon to fear, would have been deplorable to the laſt Degree. From Accounts, out of the Neighbourhood, we may aſſure the Public that no leſs than a Thouſand Sheep have been waſhed along the Banks of the River, and many of other Cattle.

Newcaſtle, Dec. 4. Tueſday Morning early it began to rain hard, with the Wind at S. E. which continued that Day with the Wind very high, and veering between E. and N. E. At Night it blew in a moſt extraordinary Manner, which great Damage was done to ſeveral Houſes by the Fall of the Chimnies, &c. and by the prodigious Swell of the River, which roſe at leaſt Three Feet higher than ever known; the Shops, Cellars and Warehouſes in the Glaſs-houſe Chare, Broad-chare, and Chandler-ſtreet, are moſt of them filled with Water, ſo that the Damage is computed at upwards of [illegible]. The Water about Sunderland Bridge, on Wednesday Morning, was full Three Feet deep in the Streets, and the Boats [illegible] Quay, and a Sloop lying oppoſite to the Cuſtom-houſe was driven upon the Key, ſeveral Ships were driven by the Fall of the Water, but in the Harbour [illegible] no more than [illegible]

Aſtract of a Letter from Port Roſtway, Oct. 18.

" On the Twenty-ſecond Inſtant, as a Party were getting Wood about a Mile and a Half from Port Roſt, they ſaw Six Indians coming up at them, at about Thirty Yards Diſtance, upon which the Cry was immediately given to Stand to their Arms; but the Enemy approached them, and fired on our People, when one Man was killed, and another wounded in the Head with an Arrow. The wounded Man kept them of the Indians off, till he was left alone, and then was obliged to get down a Rock in a very precipitate Manner, and eſcaped happily. The Indians were immediately purſued by the whole Gang, and ſeveral Shot fired at them, but they eſcaped. The Indians were habited in Hunting-ſhirts, the whole Gang were naked as to the Head; his belly ſtipped down, and his Head ſhaved out.—Three of the Enemy were armed with Bow and Arrows.

" The ſame Day one Hattery returned to Port-Roſt from Red Indian Creek, and brought in her Account of their having hid Part of their Proviſions in the Woods, when they were ſurprized, and carried off by the Enemy.

Other Letters from Port Roſtway, confirm the Panick occaſioned by the above Account, was pretty general.

The Legiſlature of New-Jerſey have paſſed an Act for raiſing a Number of Men not exceeding 600 to the ſame Proportion as what may be raiſed for the Service of the enſuing Year by the Government of New-York only.
